Bengal sees sharpest rise in registered voters in border areas since 2002 SIR

RAVIK BHATTACHARYA
Kolkata, November 21

BETWEEN 2002, WHEN the Special Intensive Review (SIR) was last conducted by the Election Commission of India, and 2025, West Bengal has seen a 66% increase in the number of registered voters – from 45.8 million to 76.3 million. Eighteen districts that comprised the state then, and ECI data shows that of the top 10 that showed the highest increase in the number of voters, nine districts border Bangladesh.

Different political parties in the state have different rationales for this – the opposition BJP says this is proof that “Muslim infiltrators” from Bangladesh are settling in India, while the ruling Trinamool Congress says it indicates the inflow from across the border of Hindu refugees escaping persecution.

The SIR is currently underway across the state’s 23 districts (some larger districts

were carved into smaller ones between 2002 and now).

According to data available with the ECI, the nine districts on the border that have seen an uptick are: Uttar Dinajpur (105.49% increase in number of registered voters), Malda (94.58%), Murshidabad (87.65%), South-24 Parganas (83.30%), Jalpaiguri (82.3%), Cooch Behar (76.52%), North-24 Parganas (72.18%), Nadia

(71.46%) and Dakshin Dinajpur (70.94%). The only non-border district in the top 10 is Birbhum (73.44%). Kolkata was an outlier, witnessing the lowest rise in voter numbers at just 4.6%. From 2,300,871 voters in 2002, the number rose to just 2,407,145 voters.

TMC spokesperson Arup Chakraborty said, “The sharp rise is due to Hindu refugees who have come from Bangladesh and settled in the border districts. The Hindu population in Bangladesh dropped from 23% (in 1951) to 8% (in 2022). They have not gone to China. Apart from small sections going to Assam and Tripura, the majority have come to West Bengal.”

He claimed there is a false narrative being spread by the BJP of Muslim infiltration. “Such people have settled in Cooch Behar, Alipurduar and Bangaon, where the BJP has won with their votes... In Malda and Murshidabad, there is a sizable Muslim population, and we have won seats. However, our Chief Minister, Mamata Banerjee, does not believe in such religious divisions and is demanding protection for all,” said Chakraborty.

Asked about Kolkata’s relatively low uptick, Chakraborty said he isn’t sure what explains the data.

Senior BJP leader and former state president Rahul Sinha called it an “alarming trend”. “We have been saying this for years, and it’s now being reflected in data. Seven districts bordering Bangladesh are in an alarming condition, and many are expected to become or will become Muslim-majority districts due to infiltration,” he alleged.

“This infiltration and creation of hubs is being planned. That is why data shows an abnormally high percentage of voters as compared to 2002,” he claimed.

CPI(M) state president and Politburo member, Md Salim, told The Indian Express that the inflow from Bangladesh is definitely a factor in the rise of numbers at the border districts. “BSF should have checked this. A sizable number of Hindu refugees also came in with others; that’s why the Hindu population declined in the neighbouring country,” he said.

Regarding the low figures of Kolkata, Salim said there are various reasons. “Firstly, during the Left Front regime, we were able to develop small urban centres into towns. District towns were also developed. So people from villages did not directly come to Kolkata but went to these towns, like Barasat. We were able to develop rural areas. Secondly, I think a section of people have moved out of Kolkata... some may have settled in the suburbs too, if they haven’t left the state. The birth rate (in Kolkata and the districts) is also a factor; it is not of a religious nature but due to backwardness.”

IAMAI: Draft accessibility norms to impose cost burden on OTTs

IMPLEMENTATION OF PROPOSED accessibility norms for online curated content specifically for persons with hearing and visual impairment will lead to a high cost of compliance in several cases, which may even surpass their revenue and make them commercially unsustainable, industry body IAMAI said on Friday.

The information and broadcasting ministry in October floated draft accessibility standards for audio-visual content made available by publishers of online curated content (OTT platforms) to ensure that such content is accessible to persons with hearing and visual impairment. The focus of these guidelines is not only on the content but also on the information and other support needed by persons with disabilities to enjoy such content.

The Internet and Mobile Association of India (IAMAI) said that the proposed guidelines by the Ministry of Information and Broadcasting (MIB), could severely affect regional and smaller OTT platforms, owing to the extensive operational, technical, and financial obligations they are likely to impose.

Familiar crisis at COP30 as nations reject...

IN ORDER TO ensure that these issues do not become a roadblock to progress on the other items on the agenda, COP30 presidency Brazil had conducted several rounds of consultations on these difficult issues, and had planned a separate outcome document addressing each of these issues.

Two of the issues were dear to the developing countries including India, while the other two were being pushed largely by the developed world.

The four issues included the demand of the developing countries regarding full implementation of the finance provision contained in Article 9.1 of the Paris Agreement. These countries claimed that this particular provision had been ignored till now. Their other concern, voiced repeatedly by India and China, was related to trade measures like Carbon Border Adjustment Mechanism (CBAM) imposed by the European Union. These countries argued that CBAM was a unilateral and discriminatory trade practice disguised as climate action. The developed countries had been asking for raising of mitigation ambition in pursuance of the 1.5 degree Celsius target mentioned in the Paris Agreement. Their other issue related to greater transparency in reporting of climate actions.

Weaved into these four broad issues were demands for a road map on phase-out of fossil fuels and a tripling of adaptation finance. The draft text that emerged on Friday addressed none of these issues in any concrete manner. It completely avoided any mention of fossil fuel phase-out, and proposed a two-year work programme on climate finance to discuss all matters related to finance, including Article 9.1, which was basically kicking the can further down the road.

On unilateral trade measures, the draft said that the countries agreed that responses to climate change must not constitute a means of “arbitrary or unjustifiable discrimination or a disguised restriction on international trade” and proposed further discussions on different platforms on this issue.

The draft political package was rejected almost immediately by the group that had been pushing for inclusion of a language on fossil fuel phase-out. Their representative Colombia called a press conference to announce that the draft package was unacceptable to it.

Colombian Environment Minister Irene Velez Torres told reporters that the problem was “the methodology of consensus”. Any decision at COP meeting can only be arrived through consensus, which means nothing is agreed till everyone agrees.

“The problem right now is this methodology of consensus, because this (process of) consensus has turned into a veto. And what is being left aside (as a result) is the ambitious agenda. The most ambitious agenda has been eliminated. Veto is what is happening here,” Torres said.

A deadlock on the last day of the COP meeting is nothing unusual. In fact, it is a familiar setting at every COP meeting, as countries try to thrash out last-minute compromises to get to a final deal. In the process, the end decisions inevitably are extremely watered down versions of the demands that countries started out with.

Like almost every other meeting before it, COP30 is also set to get extended, with negotiators expected to work through the night to come up with another draft that can be agreeable to everyone.

Bengal sees sharpest rise in registered voters in border areas since 2002 SIR

RAVIK BHATTACHARYA
Kolkata, November 21

BETWEEN 2002, WHEN the Special Intensive Review (SIR) was last conducted by the Election Commission of India, and 2025, West Bengal has seen a 66% increase in the number of registered voters – from 45.8 million to 76.3 million. Eighteen districts that comprised the state then, and ECI data shows that of the top 10 that showed the highest increase in the number of voters, nine districts border Bangladesh.

Different political parties in the state have different rationales for this – the opposition BJP says this is proof that “Muslim infiltrators” from Bangladesh are settling in India, while the ruling Trinamool Congress says it indicates the inflow from across the border of Hindu refugees escaping persecution.

The SIR is currently underway across the state’s 23 districts (some larger districts

were carved into smaller ones between 2002 and now).

According to data available with the ECI, the nine districts on the border that have seen an uptick are: Uttar Dinajpur (105.49% increase in number of registered voters), Malda (94.58%), Murshidabad (87.65%), South-24 Parganas (83.30%), Jalpaiguri (82.3%), Cooch Behar (76.52%), North-24 Parganas (72.18%), Nadia

(71.46%) and Dakshin Dinajpur (70.94%). The only non-border district in the top 10 is Birbhum (73.44%). Kolkata was an outlier, witnessing the lowest rise in voter numbers at just 4.6%. From 2,300,871 voters in 2002, the number rose to just 2,407,145 voters.

TMC spokesperson Arup Chakraborty said, “The sharp rise is due to Hindu refugees who have come from Bangladesh and settled in the border districts. The Hindu population in Bangladesh dropped from 23% (in 1951) to 8% (in 2022). They have not gone to China. Apart from small sections going to Assam and Tripura, the majority have come to West Bengal.”

He claimed there is a false narrative being spread by the BJP of Muslim infiltration. “Such people have settled in Cooch Behar, Alipurduar and Bangaon, where the BJP has won with their votes... In Malda and Murshidabad, there is a sizable Muslim population, and we have won seats. However, our Chief Minister, Mamata Banerjee, does not believe in such religious divisions and is demanding protection for all,” said Chakraborty.

Asked about Kolkata’s relatively low uptick, Chakraborty said he isn’t sure what explains the data.

Senior BJP leader and former state president Rahul Sinha called it an “alarming trend”, “We have been saying this for years, and it’s now being reflected in data. Seven districts bordering Bangladesh are in an alarming condition, and many are expected to become or will become Muslim-majority districts due to infiltration,” he alleged.

“This infiltration and creation of hubs is being planned. That is why data shows an abnormally high percentage of voters as compared to 2002,” he claimed.

CPI(M) state president and Politburo member, Md Salim, told The Indian Express that the inflow from Bangladesh is definitely a factor in the rise of numbers at the border districts. “BSF should have checked this. A sizable number of Hindu refugees also came in with others; that’s why the Hindu population declined in the neighbouring country,” he said.

Regarding the low figures of Kolkata, Salim said there are various reasons. “Firstly, during the Left Front regime, we were able to develop small urban centres into towns. District towns were also developed. So people from villages did not directly come to Kolkata but went to these towns, like Barasat. We were able to develop rural areas. Secondly, I think a section of people have moved out of Kolkata... some may have settled in the suburbs too, if they haven’t left the state. The birth rate (in Kolkata and the districts) is also a factor; it is not of a religious nature but due to backwardness.”

IAMAI: Draft accessibility norms to impose cost burden on OTTs

IMPLEMENTATION OF PROPOSED accessibility norms for online curated content specifically for persons with hearing and visual impairment will lead to a high cost of compliance in several cases, which may even surpass their revenue and make them commercially unsustainable, industry body IAMAI said on Friday.

The information and broadcasting ministry in October floated draft accessibility standards for audio-visual content made available by publishers of online curated content (OTT platforms) to ensure that such content is accessible to persons with hearing and visual impairment. The focus of these guidelines is not only on the content but also on the information and other support needed by persons with disabilities to enjoy such content.

The Internet and Mobile Association of India (IAMAI) said that the proposed guidelines by the Ministry of Information and Broadcasting (MIB), could severely affect regional and smaller OTT platforms, owing to the extensive operational, technical, and financial obligations they are likely to impose.

Familiar crisis at COP30 as nations reject...

IN ORDER TO ensure that these issues do not become a roadblock to progress on the other items on the agenda, COP30 presidency Brazil had conducted several rounds of consultations on these difficult issues, and had planned a separate outcome document addressing each of these issues.

Two of the issues were dear to the developing countries including India, while the other two were being pushed largely by the developed world.

The four issues included the demand of the developing countries regarding full implementation of the finance provision contained in Article 9.1 of the Paris Agreement. These countries claimed that this particular provision had been ignored till now. Their other concern, voiced repeatedly by India and China, was related to trade measures like Carbon Border Adjustment Mechanism (CBAM) imposed by the European Union. These countries argued that CBAM was a unilateral and discriminatory trade practice disguised as climate action. The developed countries had been asking for raising of mitigation ambition in pursuance of the 1.5 degree Celsius target mentioned in the Paris Agreement. Their other issue related to greater transparency in reporting of climate actions.

Weaved into these four broad issues were demands for a road map on phase-out of fossil fuels and a tripling of adaptation finance.

The draft text that emerged on Friday addressed none of these issues in any concrete manner. It completely avoided any mention of fossil fuel phase-out, and proposed a two-year work programme on climate finance to discuss all matters related to finance, including Article 9.1, which was basically kicking the can further down the road.

On unilateral trade measures, the draft said that the countries agreed that responses to climate change must not constitute a means of “arbitrary or unjustifiable discrimination or a disguised restriction on international trade” and proposed further discussions on different platforms on this issue.

The draft political package was rejected almost immediately by the group that had been pushing for inclusion of a language on fossil fuel phase-out. Their representative Colombia called a press conference to announce that the draft package was unacceptable to it.

Colombian Environment Minister Irene Velez Torres told reporters that the problem was “the methodology of consensus”. Any decision at COP meeting can only be arrived through consensus, which means nothing is agreed till everyone agrees.

“The problem right now is this methodology of consensus, because this (process of) consensus has turned into a veto. And what is being left aside (as a result) is the ambitious agenda. The most ambitious agenda has been eliminated. Veto is what is happening here,” Torres said.

A deadlock on the last day of the COP meeting is nothing unusual. In fact, it is a familiar setting at every COP meeting, as countries try to thrash out last-minute compromises to get to a final deal. In the process, the end decisions inevitably are extremely watered down versions of the demands that countries started out with.

Like almost every other meeting before it, COP30 is also set to get extended, with negotiators expected to work through the night to come up with another draft that can be agreeable to everyone.

Bengal sees sharpest rise in registered voters in border areas since 2002 SIR

The SIR is currently underway across West Bengal's 23 districts

BETWEEN 2002, WHEN the Special Intensive Review (SIR) was last conducted by the Election Commission of India, and 2025, West Bengal has seen a 66% increase in the number of registered voters – from 45.8 million to 76.3 million. Eighteen districts that comprised the state then, and ECI data shows that of the top 10 that showed the highest increase in the number of voters, nine districts border Bangladesh.

Different political parties in the state have different rationales for this – the opposition BJP says this is proof that “Muslim infiltrators” from Bangladesh are settling in India, while the ruling Trinamool Congress says it indicates the inflow from across the border of Hindu refugees escaping persecution.

The SIR is currently underway across the state’s 23 districts (some larger districts were carved into smaller ones between 2002 and now).

According to data available with the ECI, the nine districts on the border that have seen an uptick are: Uttar Dinajpur (105.49% increase in number of registered voters), Malda (94.58%), Murshidabad (87.65%), South-24 Parganas (83.30%), Jalpaiguri (82.3%), Cooch Behar (76.52%), North-24 Parganas (72.18%), Nadia

(71.46%) and Dakshin Dinajpur (70.94%). The only non-border district in the top 10 is Birbhum (73.44%). Kolkata was an outlier, witnessing the lowest rise in voter numbers at just 4.6%. From 2,300,871 voters in 2002, the number rose to just 2,407,145 voters.

TMC spokesperson Arup Chakraborty said, “The sharp rise is due to Hindu refugees who have come from Bangladesh and settled in the border districts. The Hindu population in Bangladesh dropped from 23% (in 1951) to 8% (in 2022). They have not gone to China. Apart from small sections going to Assam and Tripura, the majority have come to West Bengal.”

He claimed there is a false narrative being spread by the BJP of Muslim infiltration. “Such people have settled in Cooch Behar, Alipurduar and Bongaon, where the BJP has won with their votes... In Malda and Murshidabad, there is a sizable Muslim population, and we have won seats. However, our Chief Minister, Mamata Banerjee, does not believe in such religious divisions and is demanding protection for all,” said Chakraborty.

Asked about Kolkata’s relatively low uptick, Chakraborty said he isn’t sure what explains the data.

Senior BJP leader and former state president Rahul Sinha called it an “alarming trend”. “We have been saying this for years, and it’s now being reflected in data. Seven districts bordering Bangladesh are in an alarming condition, and many are expected to become or will become Muslim-majority districts due to infiltration,” he alleged.

“This infiltration and creation of hubs is being planned. That is why data shows an abnormally high percentage of voters as compared to 2002,” he claimed.

CPI(M) state president and Politburo member, Md Salim, told The Indian Express that the inflow from Bangladesh is definitely a factor in the rise of numbers at the border districts. “BSF should have checked this. A sizable number of Hindu refugees also came in with others; that’s why the Hindu population declined in the neighbouring country,” he said.

Regarding the low figures of Kolkata, Salim said there are various reasons. “Firstly, during the Left Front regime, we were able to develop small urban centres into towns. District towns were also developed. So people from villages did not directly come to Kolkata but went to these towns, like Barasat. We were able to develop rural areas. Secondly, I think a section of people have moved out of Kolkata... some may have settled in the suburbs too, if they haven’t left the state. The birth rate (in Kolkata and the districts) is also a factor; it is not of a religious nature but due to backwardness.”

IAMAI: Draft accessibility norms to impose cost burden on OTTs

IMPLEMENTATION OF PROPOSED accessibility norms for online curated content specifically for persons with hearing and visual impairment will lead to a high cost of compliance in several cases, which may even surpass their revenue and make them commercially unsustainable, industry body IAMAI said on Friday.

The information and broadcasting ministry in October floated draft accessibility standards for audio-visual content made available by publishers of online curated content (OTT platforms) to ensure that such content is accessible to persons with hearing and visual impairment. The focus of these guidelines is not only on the content but also on the information and other support needed by persons with disabilities to enjoy such content.

The Internet and Mobile Association of India (IAMAI) said that the proposed guidelines by the Ministry of Information and Broadcasting (MIB), could severely affect regional and smaller OTT platforms, owing to the extensive operational, technical, and financial obligations they are likely to impose.

Familiar crisis at COP30 as nations reject...

IN ORDER TO ensure that these issues do not become a roadblock to progress on the other items on the agenda, COP30 presidency Brazil had conducted several rounds of consultations on these difficult issues, and had planned a separate outcome document addressing each of these issues.

Two of the issues were dear to the developing countries including India, while the other two were being pushed largely by the developed world.

The four issues included the demand of the developing countries regarding full implementation of the finance provision contained in Article 9.1 of the Paris Agreement. These countries claimed that this particular provision had been ignored till now. Their other concern, voiced repeatedly by India and China, was related to trade measures like Carbon Border Adjustment Mechanism (CBAM) imposed by the European Union. These countries argued that CBAM was a unilateral and discriminatory trade practice disguised as climate action. The developed countries had been asking for raising of mitigation ambition in pursuance of the 1.5 degree Celsius target mentioned in the Paris Agreement. Their other issue related to greater transparency in reporting of climate actions.

Weaved into these four broad issues were demands for a road map on phase-out of fossil fuels and a tripling of adaptation finance.

The draft text that emerged on Friday addressed none of these issues in any concrete manner. It completely avoided any mention of fossil fuel phase-out, and proposed a two-year work programme on climate finance to discuss all matters related to finance, including Article 9.1, which was basically kicking the can further down the road.

On unilateral trade measures, the draft said that the countries agreed that responses to climate change must not constitute a means of “arbitrary or unjustifiable discrimination or a disguised restriction on international trade” and proposed further discussions on different platforms on this issue.

The draft political package was rejected almost immediately by the group that had been pushing for inclusion of a language on fossil fuel phase-out. Their representative Colombia called a press conference to announce that the draft package was unacceptable to it.

Colombian Environment Minister Irene Velez Torres told reporters that the problem was “the methodology of consensus”. Any decision at COP meeting can only be arrived through consensus, which means nothing is agreed till everyone agrees.

“The problem right now is this methodology of consensus, because this (process of) consensus has turned into a veto. And what is being left aside (as a result) is the ambitious agenda. The most ambitious agenda has been eliminated. Veto is what is happening here,” Torres said.

A deadlock on the last day of the COP meeting is nothing unusual. In fact, it is a familiar setting at every COP meeting, as countries try to trash out last-minute compromises to get to a final deal. In the process, the end decisions inevitably are extremely watered down versions of the demands that countries started out with.

Like almost every other meeting before it, COP30 is also set to get extended, with negotiators expected to work through the night to come up with another draft that can be agreeable to everyone.

Bengal sees sharpest rise in registered voters in border areas since 2002 SIR

RAVIK BHATTACHARYA
Kolkata, November 21

BETWEEN 2002, WHEN the Special Intensive Review (SIR) was last conducted by the Election Commission of India, and 2025, West Bengal has seen a 66% increase in the number of registered voters – from 45.8 million to 76.3 million. Eighteen districts that comprised the state then, and ECI data shows that of the top 10 that showed the highest increase in the number of voters, nine districts border Bangladesh.

Different political parties in the state have different rationales for this – the opposition BJP says this is proof that “Muslim infiltrators” from Bangladesh are settling in India, while the ruling Trinamool Congress says it indicates the inflow from across the border of Hindu refugees escaping persecution.

The SIR is currently underway across the state’s 23 districts (some larger districts

were carved into smaller ones between 2002 and now).

According to data available with the ECI, the nine districts on the border that have seen an uptick are: Uttar Dinajpur (105.49% increase in number of registered voters), Malda (94.58%), Murshidabad (87.65%), South-24 Parganas (83.30%), Jalpaiguri (82.3%), Cooch Behar (76.52%), North-24 Parganas (72.18%), Nadia

(71.46%) and Dakshin Dinajpur (70.94%). The only non-border district in the top 10 is Birbhum (73.44%). Kolkata was an outlier, witnessing the lowest rise in voter numbers at just 4.6%. From 2,300,871 voters in 2002, the number rose to just 2,407,145 voters.

TMC spokesperson Arup Chakraborty said, “The sharp rise is due to Hindu refugees who have come from Bangladesh and settled in the border districts. The Hindu population in Bangladesh dropped from 23% (in 1951) to 8% (in 2022). They have not gone to China. Apart from small sections going to Assam and Tripura, the majority have come to West Bengal.”

He claimed there is a false narrative being spread by the BJP of Muslim infiltration. “Such people have settled in Cooch Behar, Alipurduar and Bangaon, where the BJP has won with their votes... In Malda and Murshidabad, there is a sizable Muslim population, and we have won seats. However, our Chief Minister, Mamata Banerjee, does not believe in such religious divisions and is demanding protection for all,” said Chakraborty.

Asked about Kolkata’s relatively low uptick, Chakraborty said he isn’t sure what explains the data.

Senior BJP leader and former state president Rahul Sinha called it an “alarming trend”, “We have been saying this for years, and it’s now being reflected in data. Seven districts bordering Bangladesh are in an alarming condition, and many are expected to become or will become Muslim-majority districts due to infiltration,” he alleged.

“This infiltration and creation of hubs is being planned. That is why data shows an abnormally high percentage of voters as compared to 2002,” he claimed.

CPI(M) state president and Politburo member, Md Salim, told The Indian Express that the inflow from Bangladesh is definitely a factor in the rise of numbers at the border districts. “BSF should have checked this. A sizable number of Hindu refugees also came in with others; that’s why the Hindu population declined in the neighbouring country,” he said.

Regarding the low figures of Kolkata, Salim said there are various reasons. “Firstly, during the Left Front regime, we were able to develop small urban centres into towns. District towns were also developed. So people from villages did not directly come to Kolkata but went to these towns, like Barasat. We were able to develop rural areas. Secondly, I think a section of people have moved out of Kolkata... some may have settled in the suburbs too, if they haven’t left the state. The birth rate (in Kolkata and the districts) is also a factor; it is not of a religious nature but due to backwardness.”

IAMAI: Draft accessibility norms to impose cost burden on OTTs

IMPLEMENTATION OF PROPOSED accessibility norms for online curated content specifically for persons with hearing and visual impairment will lead to a high cost of compliance in several cases, which may even surpass their revenue and make them commercially unsustainable, industry body IAMAI said on Friday.

The information and broadcasting ministry in October floated draft accessibility standards for audio-visual content made available by publishers of online curated content (OTT platforms) to ensure that such content is accessible to persons with hearing and visual impairment. The focus of these guidelines is not only on the content but also on the information and other support needed by persons with disabilities to enjoy such content.

The Internet and Mobile Association of India (IAMAI) said that the proposed guidelines by the Ministry of Information and Broadcasting (MIB), could severely affect regional and smaller OTT platforms, owing to the extensive operational, technical, and financial obligations they are likely to impose.

IN ORDER TO ensure that these issues do not become a roadblock to progress on the other items on the agenda, COP30 presidency Brazil had conducted several rounds of consultations on these difficult issues, and had planned a separate outcome document addressing each of these issues.

Two of the issues were dear to the developing countries including India, while the other two were being pushed largely by the developed world.

The four issues included the demand of the developing countries regarding full implementation of the finance provision contained in Article 9.1 of the Paris Agreement. These countries claimed that this particular provision had been ignored till now. Their other concern, voiced repeatedly by India and China, was related to trade measures like Carbon Border Adjustment Mechanism (CBAM) imposed by the European Union. These countries argued that CBAM was a unilateral and discriminatory trade practice disguised as climate action. The developed countries had been asking for raising of mitigation ambition in pursuance of the 1.5 degree Celsius target mentioned in the Paris Agreement. Their other issue related to greater transparency in reporting of climate actions.

Weaved into these four broad issues were demands for a road map on phase-out of fossil fuels and a tripling of adaptation finance.

The draft text that emerged on Friday addressed none of these issues in any concrete manner. It completely avoided any mention of fossil fuel phase-out, and proposed a two-year work programme on climate finance to discuss all matters related to finance, including Article 9.1, which was basically kicking the can further down the road.

On unilateral trade measures, the draft said that the countries agreed that responses to climate change must not constitute a means of “arbitrary or unjustifiable discrimination or a disguised restriction on international trade” and proposed further discussions on different platforms on this issue.

The draft political package was rejected almost immediately by the group that had been pushing for inclusion of a language on fossil fuel phase-out. Their representative Colombia called a press conference to announce that the draft package was unacceptable to it.

Colombian Environment Minister Irene Velez Torres told reporters that the problem was “the methodology of consensus”. Any decision at COP meeting can only be arrived through consensus, which means nothing is agreed till everyone agrees.

“The problem right now is this methodology of consensus, because this (process of) consensus has turned into a veto. And what is being left aside (as a result) is the ambitious agenda. The most ambitious agenda has been eliminated. Veto is what is happening here,” Torres said.

A deadlock on the last day of the COP meeting is nothing unusual. In fact, it is a familiar setting at every COP meeting, as countries try to thrash out last-minute compromises to get to a final deal. In the process, the end decisions inevitably are extremely watered down versions of the demands that countries started out with.

Like almost every other meeting before it, COP30 is also set to get extended, with negotiators expected to work through the night to come up with another draft that can be agreeable to everyone.

Bengal sees sharpest rise in registered voters in border areas since 2002 SIR

RAVIK BHATTACHARYA
Kolkata, November 21

BETWEEN 2002, WHEN the Special Intensive Review (SIR) was last conducted by the Election Commission of India, and 2025, West Bengal has seen a 66% increase in the number of registered voters – from 45.8 million to 76.3 million. Eighteen districts that comprised the state then, and ECI data shows that of the top 10 that showed the highest increase in the number of voters, nine districts border Bangladesh.

Different political parties in the state have different rationales for this – the opposition BJP says this is proof that “Muslim infiltrators” from Bangladesh are settling in India, while the ruling Trinamool Congress says it indicates the inflow from across the border of Hindu refugees escaping persecution.

The SIR is currently underway across the state’s 23 districts (some larger districts

were carved into smaller ones between 2002 and now).

According to data available with the ECI, the nine districts on the border that have seen an uptick are: Uttar Dinajpur (105.49% increase in number of registered voters), Malda (94.58%), Murshidabad (87.65%), South-24 Parganas (83.30%), Jalpaiguri (82.3%), Cooch Behar (76.52%), North-24 Parganas (72.18%), Nadia

(71.46%) and Dakshin Dinajpur (70.94%). The only non-border district in the top 10 is Birbhum (73.44%). Kolkata was an outlier, witnessing the lowest rise in voter numbers at just 4.6%. From 2,300,871 voters in 2002, the number rose to just 2,407,145 voters.

TMC spokesperson Arup Chakraborty said, “The sharp rise is due to Hindu refugees who have come from Bangladesh and settled in the border districts. The Hindu population in Bangladesh dropped from 23% (in 1951) to 8% (in 2022). They have not gone to China. Apart from small sections going to Assam and Tripura, the majority have come to West Bengal.”

He claimed there is a false narrative being spread by the BJP of Muslim infiltration. “Such people have settled in Cooch Behar, Alipurduar and Bangaon, where the BJP has won with their votes... In Malda and Murshidabad, there is a sizable Muslim population, and we have won seats. However, our Chief Minister, Mamata Banerjee, does not believe in such religious divisions and is demanding protection for all,” said Chakraborty.

Asked about Kolkata’s relatively low uptick, Chakraborty said he isn’t sure what explains the data.

Senior BJP leader and former state president Rahul Sinha called it an “alarming trend”, “We have been saying this for years, and it’s now being reflected in data. Seven districts bordering Bangladesh are in an alarming condition, and many are expected to become or will become Muslim-majority districts due to infiltration,” he alleged.

“This infiltration and creation of hubs is being planned. That is why data shows an abnormally high percentage of voters as compared to 2002,” he claimed.

CPI(M) state president and Politburo member, Md Salim, told The Indian Express that the inflow from Bangladesh is definitely a factor in the rise of numbers at the border districts. “BSF should have checked this. A sizable number of Hindu refugees also came in with others; that’s why the Hindu population declined in the neighbouring country,” he said.

Regarding the low figures of Kolkata, Salim said there are various reasons. “Firstly, during the Left Front regime, we were able to develop small urban centres into towns. District towns were also developed. So people from villages did not directly come to Kolkata but went to these towns, like Barasat. We were able to develop rural areas. Secondly, I think a section of people have moved out of Kolkata... some may have settled in the suburbs too, if they haven’t left the state. The birth rate (in Kolkata and the districts) is also a factor; it is not of a religious nature but due to backwardness.”

IAMAI: Draft accessibility norms to impose cost burden on OTTs

IMPLEMENTATION OF PROPOSED accessibility norms for online curated content specifically for persons with hearing and visual impairment will lead to a high cost of compliance in several cases, which may even surpass their revenue and make them commercially unsustainable, industry body IAMAI said on Friday.

The information and broadcasting ministry in October floated draft accessibility standards for audio-visual content made available by publishers of online curated content (OTT platforms) to ensure that such content is accessible to persons with hearing and visual impairment. The focus of these guidelines is not only on the content but also on the information and other support needed by persons with disabilities to enjoy such content.

The Internet and Mobile Association of India (IAMAI) said that the proposed guidelines by the Ministry of Information and Broadcasting (MIB), could severely affect regional and smaller OTT platforms, owing to the extensive operational, technical, and financial obligations they are likely to impose.

Familiar crisis at COP30 as nations reject...

IN ORDER TO ensure that these issues do not become a roadblock to progress on the other items on the agenda, COP30 presidency Brazil had conducted several rounds of consultations on these difficult issues, and had planned a separate outcome document addressing each of these issues.

Two of the issues were dear to the developing countries including India, while the other two were being pushed largely by the developed world.

The four issues included the demand of the developing countries regarding full implementation of the finance provision contained in Article 9.1 of the Paris Agreement. These countries claimed that this particular provision had been ignored till now. Their other concern, voiced repeatedly by India and China, was related to trade measures like Carbon Border Adjustment Mechanism (CBAM) imposed by the European Union. These countries argued that CBAM was a unilateral and discriminatory trade practice disguised as climate action. The developed countries had been asking for raising of mitigation ambition in pursuance of the 1.5 degree Celsius target mentioned in the Paris Agreement. Their other issue related to greater transparency in reporting of climate actions.

Weaved into these four broad issues were demands for a road map on phase-out of fossil fuels and a tripling of adaptation finance.

The draft text that emerged on Friday addressed none of these issues in any concrete manner. It completely avoided any mention of fossil fuel phase-out, and proposed a two-year work programme on climate finance to discuss all matters related to finance, including Article 9.1, which was basically kicking the can further down the road.

On unilateral trade measures, the draft said that the countries agreed that responses to climate change must not constitute a means of “arbitrary or unjustifiable discrimination or a disguised restriction on international trade” and proposed further discussions on different platforms on this issue.

The draft political package was rejected almost immediately by the group that had been pushing for inclusion of a language on fossil fuel phase-out. Their representative Colombia called a press conference to announce that the draft package was unacceptable to it.

Colombian Environment Minister Irene Velez Torres told reporters that the problem was “the methodology of consensus”. Any decision at COP meeting can only be arrived through consensus, which means nothing is agreed till everyone agrees.

“The problem right now is this methodology of consensus, because this (process of) consensus has turned into a veto. And what is being left aside (as a result) is the ambitious agenda. The most ambitious agenda has been eliminated. Veto is what is happening here,” Torres said.

A deadlock on the last day of the COP meeting is nothing unusual. In fact, it is a familiar setting at every COP meeting, as countries try to thrash out last-minute compromises to get to a final deal. In the process, the end decisions inevitably are extremely watered down versions of the demands that countries started out with.

Like almost every other meeting before it, COP30 is also set to get extended, with negotiators expected to work through the night to come up with another draft that can be agreeable to everyone.

Bengal sees sharpest rise in registered voters in border areas since 2002 SIR

RAVIK BHATTACHARYA
Kolkata, November 21

BETWEEN 2002, WHEN the Special Intensive Review (SIR) was last conducted by the Election Commission of India, and 2025, West Bengal has seen a 66% increase in the number of registered voters – from 45.8 million to 76.3 million. Eighteen districts that comprised the state then, and ECI data shows that of the top 10 that showed the highest increase in the number of voters, nine districts border Bangladesh.

Different political parties in the state have different rationales for this – the opposition BJP says this is proof that “Muslim infiltrators” from Bangladesh are settling in India, while the ruling Trinamool Congress says it indicates the inflow from across the border of Hindu refugees escaping persecution.

The SIR is currently underway across the state’s 23 districts (some larger districts

were carved into smaller ones between 2002 and now).

According to data available with the ECI, the nine districts on the border that have seen an uptick are: Uttar Dinajpur (105.49% increase in number of registered voters), Malda (94.58%), Murshidabad (87.65%), South-24 Parganas (83.30%), Jalpaiguri (82.3%), Cooch Behar (76.52%), North-24 Parganas (72.18%), Nadia

(71.46%) and Dakshin Dinajpur (70.94%). The only non-border district in the top 10 is Birbhum (73.44%). Kolkata was an outlier, witnessing the lowest rise in voter numbers at just 4.6%. From 2,300,871 voters in 2002, the number rose to just 2,407,145 voters.

TMC spokesperson Arup Chakraborty said, “The sharp rise is due to Hindu refugees who have come from Bangladesh and settled in the border districts. The Hindu population in Bangladesh dropped from 23% (in 1951) to 8% (in 2022). They have not gone to China. Apart from small sections going to Assam and Tripura, the majority have come to West Bengal.”

He claimed there is a false narrative being spread by the BJP of Muslim infiltration. “Such people have settled in Cooch Behar, Alipurduar and Bangaon, where the BJP has won with their votes... In Malda and Murshidabad, there is a sizable Muslim population, and we have won seats. However, our Chief Minister, Mamata Banerjee, does not believe in such religious divisions and is demanding protection for all,” said Chakraborty.

Asked about Kolkata’s relatively low uptick, Chakraborty said he isn’t sure what explains the data.

Senior BJP leader and former state president Rahul Sinha called it an “alarming trend”. “We have been saying this for years, and it’s now being reflected in data. Seven districts bordering Bangladesh are in an alarming condition, and many are expected to become or will become Muslim-majority districts due to infiltration,” he alleged.

“This infiltration and creation of hubs is being planned. That is why data shows an abnormally high percentage of voters as compared to 2002,” he claimed.

CPI(M) state president and Politburo member, Md Salim, told The Indian Express that the inflow from Bangladesh is definitely a factor in the rise of numbers at the border districts. “BSF should have checked this. A sizable number of Hindu refugees also came in with others; that’s why the Hindu population declined in the neighbouring country,” he said.

Regarding the low figures of Kolkata, Salim said there are various reasons. “Firstly, during the Left Front regime, we were able to develop small urban centres into towns. District towns were also developed. So people from villages did not directly come to Kolkata but went to these towns, like Barasat. We were able to develop rural areas. Secondly, I think a section of people have moved out of Kolkata... some may have settled in the suburbs too, if they haven’t left the state. The birth rate (in Kolkata and the districts) is also a factor; it is not of a religious nature but due to backwardness.”

IAMAI: Draft accessibility norms to impose cost burden on OTTs

IMPLEMENTATION OF PROPOSED accessibility norms for online curated content specifically for persons with hearing and visual impairment will lead to a high cost of compliance in several cases, which may even surpass their revenue and make them commercially unsustainable, industry body IAMAI said on Friday.

The information and broadcasting ministry in October floated draft accessibility standards for audio-visual content made available by publishers of online curated content (OTT platforms) to ensure that such content is accessible to persons with hearing and visual impairment. The focus of these guidelines is not only on the content but also on the information and other support needed by persons with disabilities to enjoy such content.

The Internet and Mobile Association of India (IAMAI) said that the Ministry of Information and Broadcasting (MIB), could severely affect regional and smaller OTT platforms, owing to the extensive operational, technical, and financial obligations they are likely to impose.

IN ORDER TO ensure that these issues do not become a roadblock to progress on the other items on the agenda, COP30 presidency Brazil had conducted several rounds of consultations on these difficult issues, and had planned a separate outcome document addressing each of these issues.

Two of the issues were dear to the developing countries including India, while the other two were being pushed largely by the developed world.

The four issues included the demand of the developing countries regarding full implementation of the finance provision contained in Article 9.1 of the Paris Agreement. These countries claimed that this particular provision had been ignored till now. Their other concern, voiced repeatedly by India and China, was related to trade measures like Carbon Border Adjustment Mechanism (CBAM) imposed by the European Union. These countries argued that CBAM was a unilateral and discriminatory trade practice disguised as climate action. The developed countries had been asking for raising of mitigation ambition in pursuance of the 1.5 degree Celsius target mentioned in the Paris Agreement. Their other issue related to greater transparency in reporting of climate actions.

Weaved into these four broad issues were demands for a road map on phase-out of fossil fuels and a tripling of adaptation finance.

The draft text that emerged on Friday addressed none of these issues in any concrete manner. It completely avoided any mention of fossil fuel phase-out, and proposed a two-year work programme on climate finance to discuss all matters related to finance, including Article 9.1, which was basically kicking the can further down the road.

On unilateral trade measures, the draft said that the countries agreed that responses to climate change must not constitute a means of “arbitrary or unjustified discrimination or a disguised restriction on international trade” and proposed further discussions on different platforms on this issue.

The draft political package was rejected almost immediately by the group that had been pushing for inclusion of a language on fossil fuel phase-out. Their representative Colombia called a press conference to announce that the draft package was unacceptable to it.

Colombian Environment Minister Irene Velez Torres told reporters that the problem was “the methodology of consensus”. Any decision at COP meeting can only be arrived through consensus, which means nothing is agreed till everyone agrees.

“The problem right now is this methodology of consensus, because this (process of) consensus has turned into a veto. And what is being left aside (as a result) is the ambitious agenda. The most ambitious agenda has been eliminated. Veto is what is happening here,” Torres said.

A deadlock on the last day of the COP meeting is nothing unusual. In fact, it is a familiar setting at every COP meeting, as countries try to thrash out last-minute compromises to get to a final deal. In the process, the end decisions are inevitably an extremely watered down version of the demands that countries started out with.

Like almost every other meeting before it, COP30 is also set to get extended, with negotiators expected to work through the night to come up with another draft that can be agreeable to everyone.

Bengal sees sharpest rise in registered voters in border areas since 2002 SIR

The SIR is currently underway across West Bengal's 23 districts

BETWEEN 2002, WHEN the Special Intensive Review (SIR) was last conducted by the Election Commission of India, and 2025, West Bengal has seen a 66% increase in the number of registered voters – from 45.8 million to 76.3 million. Eighteen districts that comprised the state then, and ECI data shows that of the top 10 that showed the highest increase in the number of voters, nine districts border Bangladesh.

Different political parties in the state have different rationales for this – the opposition BJP says this is proof that “Muslim infiltrators” from Bangladesh are settling in India, while the ruling Trinamool Congress says it indicates the inflow from across the border of Hindu refugees escaping persecution.

The SIR is currently underway across the state's 23 districts (some larger districts

Bangladesh and settled in the border districts. The Hindu population in Bangladesh dropped from 23% (in 1951) to 8% (in 2022). They have not gone to China. Apart from small sections going to Assam and Tripura, the majority have come to West Bengal.”

He claimed there is a false narrative being spread by the BJP of Muslim infiltration. “Such people have settled in Cooch Behar, Alipurduar and Bongaon, where the BJP has won with their votes... In Malda and Murshidabad, there is a sizable Muslim population, and we have won seats. However, our Chief Minister, Mamata Banerjee, does not believe in such religious divisions and is demanding protection for all,” said Chakraborty.

Asked about Kolkata’s relatively low uptick, Chakraborty said he isn’t sure what explains the data.

Senior BJP leader and former state president Rahul Sinha called it an “alarming trend”. “We have been saying this for years, and it’s now being reflected in data. Seven districts bordering Bangladesh are in an alarming condition, and many are expected to become or will become Muslim-majority districts due to

IAMAI: Draft accessibility norms to impose cost burden on OTTs

IMPLEMENTATION OF PROPOSED accessibility norms for online curated content specifically for persons with hearing and visual impairment will lead to a high cost of compliance in several cases, which may even surpass their revenue and make them commercially unsustainable, industry body IAMAI said on Friday.

The information and broadcasting ministry in October floated draft accessibility standards for audio-visual content made available by publishers of online curated content (OTT platforms) to ensure that such content is accessible to persons with hearing and visual impairment. The focus of these guidelines is not only on the content but also on the information and other support needed by persons with disabilities to enjoy such content.

The Internet and Mobile Association of India (IAMAI) said that the proposed guidelines by the Ministry of Information and Broadcasting (MIB), could severely affect regional and smaller OTT platforms, owing to the extensive operational, technical, and financial obligations they are likely to impose.

Familiar crisis at COP30 as nations reject...

IN ORDER TO ensure that these issues do not become a roadblock to progress on the other items on the agenda, COP30 presidency Brazil had conducted several rounds of consultations on these difficult issues, and had planned a separate outcome document addressing each of these issues.

Two of the issues were dear to the developing countries including India, while the other two were being pushed largely by the developed world.

The four issues included the demand of the developing countries regarding full implementation of the finance provision contained in Article 9.1 of the Paris Agreement. These countries claimed that this particular provision had been ignored till now. Their other concern, voiced repeatedly by India and China, was related to trade measures like Carbon Border Adjustment Mechanism (CBAM) imposed by the European Union. These countries argued that CBAM was a unilateral and discriminatory trade practice disguised as climate action. The developed countries had been asking for raising of mitigation ambition in pursuance of the 1.5 degree Celsius target mentioned in the Paris Agreement. Their other issue related to greater transparency in reporting of climate actions.

Weaved into these four broad issues were demands for a road map on phase-out of fossil fuels and a tripling of adaptation finance.

The draft text that emerged on Friday addressed none of these issues in any concrete manner. It completely avoided any mention of fossil fuel phase-out, and proposed a two-year work programme on climate finance to discuss all matters related to finance, including Article 9.1, which was basically kicking the can further down the road.

On unilateral trade measures, the draft said that the countries agreed that responses to climate change must not constitute a means of “arbitrary or unjustifiable discrimination or a disguised restriction on international trade” and proposed further discussions on different platforms on this issue.

The draft political package was rejected almost immediately by the group that had been pushing for inclusion of a language on fossil fuel phase-out. Their representative Colombia called a press conference to announce that the draft package was unacceptable to it.

Colombian Environment Minister Irene Velez Torres told reporters that the problem was “the methodology of consensus”. Any decision at COP meeting can only be arrived through consensus, which means nothing is agreed till everyone agrees.

“The problem right now is this methodology of consensus, because this (process of) consensus has turned into a veto. And what is being left aside (as a result) is the ambitious agenda. The most ambitious agenda has been eliminated. Veto is what is happening here,” Torres said.

A deadlock on the last day of the COP meeting is nothing unusual. In fact, it is a familiar setting at every COP meeting, as countries try to trash out last-minute compromises to get to a final deal. In the process, the end decisions inevitably are extremely watered down versions of the demands that countries started out with.

Like almost every other meeting before it, COP30 is also set to get extended, with negotiators expected to work through the night to come up with another draft that can be agreeable to everyone.

Bengal sees sharpest rise in registered voters in border areas since 2002 SIR

RAVIK BHATTACHARYA
Kolkata, November 21

BETWEEN 2002, WHEN the Special Intensive Review (SIR) was last conducted by the Election Commission of India, and 2025, West Bengal has seen a 66% increase in the number of registered voters – from 45.8 million to 76.3 million. Eighteen districts that comprised the state then, and ECI data shows that of the top 10 that showed the highest increase in the number of voters, nine districts border Bangladesh.

Different political parties in the state have different rationales for this – the opposition BJP says this is proof that “Muslim infiltrators” from Bangladesh are settling in India, while the ruling Trinamool Congress says it indicates the inflow from across the border of Hindu refugees escaping persecution.

The SIR is currently underway across the state’s 23 districts (some larger districts

were carved into smaller ones between 2002 and now).

According to data available with the ECI, the nine districts on the border that have seen an uptick are: Uttar Dinajpur (105.49% increase in number of registered voters), Malda (94.58%), Murshidabad (87.65%), South-24 Parganas (83.30%), Jalpaiguri (82.3%), Cooch Behar (76.52%), North-24 Parganas (72.18%), Nadia

(71.46%) and Dakshin Dinajpur (70.94%). The only non-border district in the top 10 is Birbhum (73.44%). Kolkata was an outlier, witnessing the lowest rise in voter numbers at just 4.6%. From 2,300,871 voters in 2002, the number rose to just 2,407,145 voters.

TMC spokesperson Arup Chakraborty said, “The sharp rise is due to Hindu refugees who have come from Bangladesh and settled in the border districts. The Hindu population in Bangladesh dropped from 23% (in 1951) to 8% (in 2022). They have not gone to China. Apart from small sections going to Assam and Tripura, the majority have come to West Bengal.”

He claimed there is a false narrative being spread by the BJP of Muslim infiltration. “Such people have settled in Cooch Behar, Alipurduar and Bangaon, where the BJP has won with their votes... In Malda and Murshidabad, there is a sizable Muslim population, and we have won seats. However, our Chief Minister, Mamata Banerjee, does not believe in such religious divisions and is demanding protection for all,” said Chakraborty.

Asked about Kolkata’s relatively low uptick, Chakraborty said he isn’t sure what explains the data.

Senior BJP leader and former state president Rahul Sinha called it an “alarming trend”, “We have been saying this for years, and it’s now being reflected in data. Seven districts bordering Bangladesh are in an alarming condition, and many are expected to become or will become Muslim-majority districts due to infiltration,” he alleged.

“This infiltration and creation of hubs is being planned. That is why data shows an abnormally high percentage of voters as compared to 2002,” he claimed.

CPI(M) state president and Politburo member, Md Salim, told The Indian Express that the inflow from Bangladesh is definitely a factor in the rise of numbers at the border districts. “BSF should have checked this. A sizable number of Hindu refugees also came in with others; that’s why the Hindu population declined in the neighbouring country,” he said.

Regarding the low figures of Kolkata, Salim said there are various reasons. “Firstly, during the Left Front regime, we were able to develop small urban centres into towns. District towns were also developed. So people from villages did not directly come to Kolkata but went to these towns, like Barasat. We were able to develop rural areas. Secondly, I think a section of people have moved out of Kolkata... some may have settled in the suburbs too, if they haven’t left the state. The birth rate (in Kolkata and the districts) is also a factor; it is not of a religious nature but due to backwardness.”

IAMAI: Draft accessibility norms to impose cost burden on OTTs

IMPLEMENTATION OF PROPOSED accessibility norms for online curated content specifically for persons with hearing and visual impairment will lead to a high cost of compliance in several cases, which may even surpass their revenue and make them commercially unsustainable, industry body IAMAI said on Friday.

The information and broadcasting ministry in October floated draft accessibility standards for audio-visual content made available by publishers of online curated content (OTT platforms) to ensure that such content is accessible to persons with hearing and visual impairment. The focus of these guidelines is not only on the content but also on the information and other support needed by persons with disabilities to enjoy such content.

The Internet and Mobile Association of India (IAMAI) said that the proposed guidelines by the Ministry of Information and Broadcasting (MIB), could severely affect regional and smaller OTT platforms, owing to the extensive operational, technical, and financial obligations they are likely to impose.

Familiar crisis at COP30 as nations reject...

IN ORDER TO ensure that these issues do not become a roadblock to progress on the other items on the agenda, COP30 presidency Brazil had conducted several rounds of consultations on these difficult issues, and had planned a separate outcome document addressing each of these issues.

Two of the issues were dear to the developing countries including India, while the other two were being pushed largely by the developed world.

The four issues included the demand of the developing countries regarding full implementation of the finance provision contained in Article 9.1 of the Paris Agreement. These countries claimed that this particular provision had been ignored till now. Their other concern, voiced repeatedly by India and China, was related to trade measures like Carbon Border Adjustment Mechanism (CBAM) imposed by the European Union. These countries argued that CBAM was a unilateral and discriminatory trade practice disguised as climate action. The developed countries had been asking for raising of mitigation ambition in pursuance of the 1.5 degree Celsius target mentioned in the Paris Agreement. Their other issue related to greater transparency in reporting of climate actions.

Weaved into these four broad issues were demands for a road map on phase-out of fossil fuels and a tripling of adaptation finance.

The draft text that emerged on Friday addressed none of these issues in any concrete manner. It completely avoided any mention of fossil fuel phase-out, and proposed a two-year work programme on climate finance to discuss all matters related to finance, including Article 9.1, which was basically kicking the can further down the road.

On unilateral trade measures, the draft said that the countries agreed that responses to climate change must not constitute a means of “arbitrary or unjustifiable discrimination or a disguised restriction on international trade” and proposed further discussions on different platforms on this issue.

The draft political package was rejected almost immediately by the group that had been pushing for inclusion of a language on fossil fuel phase-out. Their representative Colombia called a press conference to announce that the draft package was unacceptable to it.

Colombian Environment Minister Irene Velez Torres told reporters that the problem was “the methodology of consensus”. Any decision at COP meeting can only be arrived through consensus, which means nothing is agreed till everyone agrees.

“The problem right now is this methodology of consensus, because this (process of) consensus has turned into a veto. And what is being left aside (as a result) is the ambitious agenda. The most ambitious agenda has been eliminated. Veto is what is happening here,” Torres said.

A deadlock on the last day of the COP meeting is nothing unusual. In fact, it is a familiar setting at every COP meeting, as countries try to thrash out last-minute compromises to get to a final deal. In the process, the end decisions inevitably are extremely watered down versions of the demands that countries started out with.

Like almost every other meeting before it, COP30 is also set to get extended, with negotiators expected to work through the night to come up with another draft that can be agreeable to everyone.

स्कूल स्तरीय चयन परीक्षा मामले में कलकत्ता हाई कोर्ट ने कहा

केंद्रीय कृषि मंत्री शिवराज सिंह चौहान ने कहा

अनुभव अंक देने पर फैसला शीर्ष अदालत के निर्णय के बाद होगा

कोलकाता, 21 नवंबर (भाषा) ।

कलकत्ता हाई कोर्ट ने स्कूल स्तरीय चयन परीक्षा (एसएलएसटी) 2025 के अभ्यर्थियों को पूर्व-शिक्षण अनुभव के आधार पर अंक दिए जाने के मुद्दे पर स्पष्टता प्रदान करते हुए कहा कि इस मुद्दे पर तभी विचार किया जा सकता है, जब शीर्ष अदालत इस बारे में निर्णय ले ले कि संबंधित अभ्यर्थियों को ऐसे अंक दिए जा सकते हैं या नहीं।

को यह आदेश तब पारित किया, जब संबंधित पक्षों का प्रतिनिधित्व करने वाले वकीलों ने अदालत को बताया कि सुप्रीम कोर्ट ने अभ्यर्थियों को शिक्षण अनुभव के आधार पर अर्ध दिए जाने के मुद्दे पर सुनवाई के लिए 24 और 26 नवंबर को तारीख तय की है।

पीठ उस याचिका पर सुनवाई कर रही थी, जिसमें 'अनुभव' के लिए निर्धारित 10 अंक आवंटित किए जाने के चरण से जुड़े फैसले को चुनौती दी गई थी।

याचिका में दलील दी गई थी कि अनुभव के आधार पर दिए जाने वाले अंक अंतिम मेरिट सूची के संकलन के दौरान जोड़े जाने चाहिए, न कि साक्षात्कार के लिए उम्मीदवारों की सूची बनाने से पहले।

पश्चिम बंगाल स्कूल सेवा आयोग (एसएससी) ने दलील दी कि साक्षात्कार के लिए पात्र अभ्यर्थियों की सूची तैयार करते समय उक्त अंकों को शामिल किया जाना

चाहिए। शीर्ष अदालत ने स्कूल भर्ती में बड़े पैमाने पर भ्रष्टाचार के आधार पर 2016 की संपूर्ण शिक्षक नियुक्ति को रद्द कर दिया था, जिसके बाद राज्य एसएससी ने सितंबर 2025 में एसएलएसटी-2 परीक्षा आयोजित की थी।

सरकारी और सहायता प्राप्त स्कूलों में कक्षा 11-12 में भर्ती के लिए आयोजित लिखित परीक्षा के नतीजों की घोषणा और सफल

न्यायमूर्त अमृता सिन्हा की पीठ ने पुरुवार को यह आदेश तब पारित किया जब संबंधित पक्षों का प्रतिनिधित्व करने वाले वकीलों ने अदालत को बताया कि सुप्रीम कोर्ट ने अभ्यर्थियों को शिक्षण अनुभव के आधार पर अंक दिए जाने के मुद्दे पर सुनवाई के लिए 24 और 26 नवंबर की तारीख तय की है।

गाँव उस यात्रिका पर सुनवाई कर रहे थे, जिसमें 'अनुभव' के लिए निर्धारित 10 अंक आवंटित किए जाने के चरण में गुड्डू फैसले को चुनौती दी गई थी। इसमें दलील दी गई थी कि अनुभव के आधार पर दिए जाने वाले अंक अतिम मेंटल सूची के संकलन के दौरान जोड़े जाने चाहिए, न कि साक्षात्कार के लिए उम्मीदवारों की सूची बनाने से पहले।

अभ्यर्थियों की साक्षात्कार सूची के प्रकाशन के बाद नए उम्मीदवारों ने बड़े पैमाने पर विरोध-प्रदर्शन किया था।

नए अभ्यर्थियों का आरोप है कि एसएससी का नौकरी से बाहर हो चुके बेदाग उम्मीदवारों को 'अनुभव अंक' देना 'अनुचित' है और इससे अगले चरण में चुने जाने की उनकी (नए अभ्यर्थियों की) संभावनाएं प्रभावित होंगी।

केंद्रीय कृषि मंत्री शिवराज सिंह चौहान ने शुक्रवार को कहा कि जलभराव और जंगली जानवरों से फसल के नुकसान का मुआवजा अब प्रधानमंत्री फसल बीमा योजना के तहत मिलेगा। नागपुर में 'एग्रोविजन' में एक सभा को संबोधित करते हुए चौहान ने कहा कि अनाज के फसल उत्पादन में पिछले 10-11 वर्षों में 44 फीसद की वृद्धि हुई है।

कृषि मंत्री ने कहा कि जलवायु परिवर्तन के इस दौर में कोई यह अंदाजा नहीं लगा सकता कि कब बारिश होगी या कब सूखा पड़ सकता है। इस साल करीब पांच से छह महीने तक लगातार बारिश हुई। सितंबर में आई बाढ़ ने कई किसानों की फसलें बर्बाद कर दीं। उन्होंने कई किसानों को अच्छी खबर देना चाहता हूँ— पीएमएफबीवाड़, जो फसल के नुकसान के लिए

युरोपियन निर्बंधांचा प्रभाव! रिलायन्स SEZ रिफायनरीत रशियन क्रूडचा वापर बंद, देशांतर्गत पुरवठा मात्र सुरू

नवी दिल्ली, दि. २१ (वृत्तसंस्था) :

रिलायन्स इंडस्ट्रीज लिमिटेडने जामनगर येथील त्यांच्या एक्सपोर्ट-ओन्ली SEZ रिफायनरीमध्ये रशियन क्रूडचा वापर पूर्णपणे थांबवण्याचा निर्णय घेतला आहे. कंपनीने स्पष्ट केले की २० नोव्हेंबरपासून SEZ युनिटमध्ये रशियन क्रूडची आयात थांबवण्यात आली असून, १ डिसेंबरपासून या युनिटमधून होणारी सर्व इंधन निर्यात केवळ नॉन-रशियन क्रूडपासूनच केली जाईल. हा निर्णय युरोपियन युनियनच्या निर्बंधांचे पालन करण्यासाठी घेण्यात आला आहे, कारण जानेवारी २०२६ पासून

‘डिजिटल गोल्ड’ खरेदीबाबत सेबीचा इशारा

मुंबई, दि. २१ (प्रतिनिधी) :

‘डिजिटल गोल्ड’ किंवा ‘ई-गोल्ड’ उत्पादनांचे नियमन करण्याचा तूर्त कोणताही विचार नसून, ही गुंतवणूक साधने नियामकांच्या कक्षेत येत नाहीत, असे ‘सेबी’चे अध्यक्ष तुहिन कांता पांडे यांनी शुक्रवारी स्पष्ट केले.

रिट्स आणि इन्व्हेस्ट्स -२०२५ वर आयोजित राष्ट्रीय परिषदेत बोलताना पांडे म्हणाले की, म्युच्युअल फंडांच्या माध्यमातून चालविले जाणारे एक्सचेंज-ट्रेडेड फंड्स (ईटीएफ) किंवा इतर ‘ट्रेडेबल गोल्ड सिक्युरिटीज’द्वारे निर्यतित सोन्याशी संबंधित गुंतवणूक सध्या केली जाऊ शकते आणि अशा गुंतवणुका नियामकांच्या कार्यक्षेत्र येतात.

कोटक महिंद्र बँकेची मोठी घोषणा; गुंतवणूकदारांना मिळणार एवढे शेअर

मुंबई, दि. २१ (प्रतिनिधी) : खासगी क्षेत्रातील आघाडीच्या कोटक महिंद्र बँकेच्या समभागांचे पाच समान भागांमध्ये विभाजनास बँकेच्या संचालक मंडळाने शुक्रवारी मान्यता दिली. यानुसार बँकेच्या समभागांचे दर्शनी मूल्य आता ५ रुपयांवरून १ रुपया केले जाणार आहे. कोटक महिंद्र बँकेने आतापर्यंत समभागांचे विभाजन आणि बक्षीस समभाग बोनस शेरअर्या रूपाने भागधारकांना उपकृत केले आहे. बँकेच्या समभागांचे सध्याचे दर्शनी मूल्य प्रत्येकी ५ रुपये आहे. २०१० मध्ये १० रुपये दर्शनी मूल्याचा समभाग दोन भागांत विभागून ५ रुपये करण्यात आला. तर जुलै २०१५ मध्ये एकास एक १:१ या प्रमाणात बक्षीस समभाग बँकेने भागधारकांना दिला

आहे. ताच्या प्रस्तावानुरूप, समभागाचे पाच समान भागांमध्ये विभाजन करण्यास संचालक मंडळाची मंजूरी मिळाली आहे. लवकरच भागधारकांची पात्रता निश्चित करणारी रेकॉर्ड तारीख जाहीर करण्यात येईल.

कोटक महिंद्र बँकेने चालू आर्थिक वर्षाच्या दुसऱ्या तिमाहीत ३,२५३ कोटी रुपयांचा निव्वळ नफा नोंदवला आहे, जो गेल्या वर्षीच्या याच कालावधीतील ३,३४८ कोटी रुपयांवरून ३ टक्क्यांनी घटला आहे. शुक्रवारच्या सत्रात कोटक महिंद्र बँकेचा समभाग १०.९० रुपयांनी घसरून २,०८७.९० रुपयांवर बंद झाला. सध्याच्या शेरअरच्या बाजार भावानुसार, ४.१५ लाख कोटी रुपयांचे बाजार भांडवल आहे. कंपनी तिच्या विद्यमान

समभागांना लहान भागांमध्ये विभागून त्याचे दर्शनी मूल्य त्या प्रमाणात कमी करते त्याला समभाग विभाजन स्टॉक स्प्लिट म्हटले जाते. जसे २०१० मध्ये कोटक महिंद्र बँकेने १० रुपयांचा समभागाचे दोन तुकडे करून त्याचे दर्शनी मूल्य ५ रुपये केले. या समभाग विभाजनामुळे बँकेच्या पात्र भागधारकांकडील समभागांची संख्या दुप्पटीने वाढू शकली. समभाग विभाजनाच्या परिणामी बाजारातील समभागांचा व्यापार वाढून ते तरलतेला पूरक ठरते.

कंपनीकडे जामनगरमध्ये दोन स्वतंत्र रिफायनरीज आहेत. एक SEZ युनिट जे संपूर्णपणे निर्यातीसाठी आहे आणि दुसरे जुने युनिट जे देशांतर्गत बाजारासाठी इंधन तयार करते. SEZ रिफायनरी सध्या जुन्या इन्व्हेंटीतील रशियन क्रूडवर प्रक्रिया करत आहे; एकदा ती सामग्री संपल्यानंतर निर्यात होणारे सर्व इंधन बिगर-रशियन तेलापासूनच उत्पादित केले जाईल. मात्र, धरगुती वापरासाठी रशियन तेलाचा पुरवठा सुरूच राहील.

रिलायन्सने सांगितले की SEZ

रिफायनरीसाठी रशियन क्रूडची आयात २० नोव्हेंबरपासून थांबवण्यात आली असून, २२ ऑक्टोबरपूर्वी ठरलेल्या करारांनुसार असलेले कार्गोच खीकारले जात आहेत. शेवटचा माल १२ नोव्हेंबरला लोड करण्यात आला होता. २० नोव्हेंबरनंतर येणारे कोणतेही रशियन तेल DTA रिफायनरीमध्ये प्रक्रिया केले जाईल.

युरोपियन युनियनने रशियावर घातलेल्या निर्बंधांमुळे हा निर्णय अपरिहार्य ठरला आहे. रशियाने युक्रेनवर केलेल्या केलेल्यानंतर EU ने रशियन कच्चे तेल आणि त्यापासून तयार होणाऱ्या पेट्रोल, डिझेल, ATF यांसारख्या

उत्पादनांवर कडक निर्बंध लादले आहेत. रिलायन्सचा SEZ रिफायनरी विभाग युरोपला मोठ्या प्रमाणात इंधन निर्यात करतो, त्यामुळे हे निर्बंध न पाळल्यास कंपनीला मोठे नुकसान सहन करावे लागले असते. नियम मोडल्यास EU बाजारपेठेत प्रवेश बंद होईल आणि जानेवारी २०२६ नंतर अब्जावधी रुपयांच्या निर्यात महसुलावर गंडांतर येऊ शकले असते. यामुळे रिलायन्सने तातडीने पावले उचलून SEZ रिफायनरीसाठी रशियन क्रूडचा वापर पूर्णपणे बंद केला असून, युरोपसाठी होणारी सर्व निर्यात सुरक्षित ठेवण्याचा निर्णय घेतला आहे.
